

SHAW REGIONAL
CANCER CENTER

Dear Charlie,

We still chuckle about Chemo Brain, and thank you again for such an inspiring performance from start to finish – a performance that made it OK for the audience to chuckle about something so serious. Our annual Celebration of Life luncheon for cancer survivors was attended by over 175 people at the end of June, and almost half of those were survivors. As I looked around the room, I saw veteran survivors and their families practically falling off their chairs with laughter, and saw people currently in active treatment begin to relax and smile. That is truly a gift you have and I applaud you for being willing to share that with so many. Your passion for life is there for all to see.

Your story touched on so many of the aspects of each person's journey and the physical and emotional challenges at each stage. For me, the importance of your family in your own ordeal touched me the most. Your presentation is so real, so funny, and so inspirational.

Thank you for making this annual event an especially memorable one. I send my love and best wishes for a fun, long, and healthy life.
