

May 30, 2014

To Whom It May Concern:

On Tuesday May 20, 2014 Charlie Lustman of pop operetta "MadeMeNuclear" came to our Cancer Center to perform on our outpatient chemotherapy floors. Charlie makes an immediate and lasting impression as one of life's special souls and I could not wait to share him with our patients.

He made his way around the treatment floors spreading his message of hope and recovery in heartfelt conversation, empathetic listening and a soothing singing voice. The Oncology Nursing Manager commented that within the fast-paced environment of our treatment suites he moved without any disruption to staff and was well received by staff and patients alike.

I was truly touched with the time he took with one particular patient and her caregiver in need of his support and encouragement and would highly recommend his message of hope performance within all cancer care environments.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Susan Stein", written over a light blue horizontal line.

Susan Stein
Office of James L. Speyer, MD

NYU CANCER INSTITUTE

Clinical Cancer Center • 160 East 34th Street, New York, NY 10016 • www.nyuci.org
NYU Cancer Institute is an NCI-designated Cancer Center