Charlie Lustman visit to The Royal Marsden Hospital – 9th February 2012

Well what can I say about Charlie Lustman that hasn't already been said by now!

Charlie bursting through the doors of the hospital was like witnessing a mini tornado, scooping up reception staff, visitors wandering through and anyone else who happened to be in his path, with each and every one of them left with a huge smile on their face, once the whirlwind had moved on.

To have someone like Charlie visit our hospital was an absolute delight and immense pleasure. His zest for life and positive attitude, not to mention musical talent and wonderful sense of humour gave us such a wonderful in-sight into what he hopes to achieve – inspiration and hope to cancer sufferers.

We wish him well in his quest and have no doubt that he will succeed.
